The System

NetHere owns and operates a high-speed wireless network in San Diego. We are not resellers so we have complete network control. The system was developed to military standards of performance and reliability and carries our 99% uptime guarantee.

Your connection requires a small antenna, which is often placed on a rooftop or balcony. In limited instances, the antenna may be located within your office near a window. The antenna is a small, flat panel, which can be painted to match its surroundings. The installation blends in to the building and is very difficult to see from neighboring buildings or the street.

NetHere technicians can perform the installation in two hours. The first step in determining service availability is a free site survey, conducted by a NetHere representative at your facility. Installation can occur within 48 hours of that time with your approval.
